DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of invention II in the reply filed on May 22, 2009 is acknowledged.

Claims 43-52 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on May 22, 2009.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 40 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The terms "low roughness" and "relative smoothness" in the claim are relative terms and therefore render the claim indefinite. These terms are not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.

Appropriate correction and/or explanation is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 30 and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gwon et al., US Patent No. 6,322,556.

Gwon et al disclose a method for the treatment of an eye lens, wherein a cut surface is produces inside the crystalline lens of the eye using multiple laser pulses, wherein the energy of the laser pulses is between 1 nJ to about 50 mJ (see claim 1-3).

As to claim 33, Gwon et al teach that the portion of the lens tissue removed by the laser pulses is less than about 100 μm (see claim 15). In this Office Action, the term "less than about 100 microns" is treated as being a range greater than zero and less than 100 μm , which includes the recited range of up to 5 μm .

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 30, 32, 34, 36-38 and 40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Bergt et al., Pub. No.: US 2005/0107773.

Bert et al. disclose an ophthalmic laser system and method of use for the treatment of ocular disorders such as presbyopia, the method comprising: directing laser pulses to the crystalline lens of the eye to form targeted cuts in the lens to improve elasticity of the eye's lens, wherein pulse energy of the laser pulses is between 100 nJ to 100 μ J (see paragraphs [0016], [0027], [0028], and [0034]; and claims 12, 17, 22 and 26).

As to claim 34, the treatment laser pulses have a repetition rate of between 10 KHz to 10 MHz (see paragraph [0035]).

Claims 38 and 40 lack method steps. The recited claims languages are directed to expected results and therefore are not given a patentable weight.

As to the new limitation "wherein one or more cut surfaces are produced" in amended claim 30, the examiner's position is that to cut/sever tissue at least two three dimensional cut is required.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 41 and 42 are allowed.

Claim 35 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
